New Shipments of Aristo-Craft's Live Steam Mikado Due Soon!

Aristo-Craft will be shipping more of its ART84100 Series Live Steam Mikado very soon. Haven't heard of Live Steam before? Well, let's fill you in on why it's so special and why you should be a part of this unique railroading experience.

Live steam operation is pure model railroading, where the train runs on the same steam mechanics as the real 19th century trains. For years, live steam had been limited to those who could afford the expensive brass locomotives used in the hobby up until now. Aristo-Craft figured out that an already existing plastic injection mold could be used to configure a live steam engine using high temp plastics, while insulating the copper boiler from the plastics itself.

Then Aristo-Craft added radio control, so that you don't have to run after a live steamer. You can control its speed and direction just like its "sparky" relatives in the electric train world. Then we added a piezo ignition system to start the flame, eliminating the “burnt finger” technique of using a match to get the flame started. Also included is a butane fuel system, a pressure gauge, a sight glass to see how much water is left, a hot water bath to expand the butane gases’ efficiency and a 45-minute run-time to enhance the live steam fun.

The first run was a hit, and the running time and pulling power is now a given. It works well and any glitch in the works has been eliminated on this second run.

The Mikado still comes in its own metal wheeled carrying case, and there is a “how-to” video included. The Mikado Live Steamer is a classic and will shortly be back in stock.

Join the live steam world with the Aristo-Craft Mikado and have a new kind of fun.

List of Production Changes for the Aristo-Craft Live Steam Mikado

1. Increased airflow to the flame area.
2. New watch glass for the butane fuel tank.
3. Extended the length of the butane filler tube, so it works with more can sizes.
4. Extended the length of the smoke stack metal tube, so that condensed steam and water will not fall back into the flame area of the loco.
5. Removed the Goodall valve as we were not happy with the performance and it caused more problems than without it. If we can rework it properly, we will make them available again in the future.

How Train Stores Can Earn Extra Profits with Garden Trains (Interior Designers, Too)

by Lewis Polk

The best introduction to garden trains is by maximizing the experience of a starter set around a Christmas tree for your customer and making this an annual event that brings family and friends over during the Christmas holidays. The concept of an “annual” car or adding a car per year can entice customers to return to the hobby store to build up their Christmas railroad, much like how Christmas tree ornaments are added to customize the tree for each family. Getting the Christmas train set up and running each year becomes “a tradition that keeps getting bigger.”

The starter set is a major investment by us as a manufacturer to promote our line to the new consumer. The price of a starter set is a promotional value to attract sales for the rest of the line. The set also needs to be a pleasant and exciting experience for the end user as well. Aristo-Craft Trains includes a radio control system along with a U.L. power supply to make the running of the train more exciting. It does so by allowing the end user to control the speed and direction without being anchored to a power pack. Our radio transmitter is deliberately similar to a TV clicker that everyone uses extensively. It can be easily carried anywhere in the room to control the train. So, as you can see, the features of the Aristo-Craft Starter Set make for an excellent demonstration vehicle to introduce customers to the hobby. As a Christmas tree display in your store is bare without a train running around it, adding a Starter Set presents a lot of opportunities to create an exciting display around the tree.

Of course, once the Christmas tree train is part of the annual family tradition, you can then encourage the moving of the set outside in the spring. A simple circle of track around a whiskey barrel or flowerpot can start a hobby and bring life to a deck, porch, patio or garden. It can run all day and without complications, but it’s a teaser that will start people into thinking of the next step of a larger layout or more container layouts.

If you like this type of display for your store, we suggest trains running around multiple flowerpots with each one having its own theme or era. Not only can the train theme change, but also so can the florals to create a riot of color on the deck or patio. With each pot decorated according to the era of the train in operation, you can have buildings, figures, animals and automobiles directed to that environment of the era. Since you can build one container pot at a time and keep adding these pots, interest will not wane, and frankly, there is little weeding or maintenance beyond what flower potter hobbyists do anyway.

With a change in seasons, you can change the look of the pot and keep your interest up as well as having visitors always looking for the latest interpretation of the trains. Desert, snow, rocks, bonsai, orchids or any floral theme can be lent to each container’s look. The trains are the icing on the cake. Holiday themes for each major floral selling event are possible, too, and our gondolas can even haul candies or other goodies of the season to make it appropriate for the occasion.

We’ve said many times that we feel like the person that sells the canvas and oil paints in an art shop, but the true artists are the hobbyists that create the layouts. Let’s get people started in small bites. Once they have several such mini-layouts in process, they might be ready to do a larger layout in their garden. By that time, they will know the quirks of keeping their trains running, and the intimidation factor will be zero.

We think a train store should create

some indoor flowerpots and put them on display as a creative incubator to the concept of garden railroading. We're sure you can sell the finished operating train flowerpot as well. We know that there are specialist miniature plant providers who can ship you the appropriate plants for these pots. Why not sell the plants as well? Become a full-service store with the full concept available from one shop. Why send people to a garden shop that will probably not have any selection of miniature plants when you can show them the whole picture?

We've noticed how popular the plant booths are at shows and the plants seem to be a good profit center for those that take the time to develop that aspect of the business. Of course, in half the country, garden sales diminish due to cold weather. However, I think you can still sell some container pot layouts for indoor family room use. Interior designs for pediatric doctors' offices or any interior that wants to be child-friendly is an opportunity waiting for you to fill.

We can envision stores with multiple pots on display with each one individualized with its own flower and train theme and a selection of product for people to design their own. Sell ready-made mini-layouts, but encourage a mix-and-match center where people can express their own individuality in design. Keep a supply of figures, cars, animals and other scenic items like rocks and perhaps tunnels, etc., so that no two layouts are alike. Aristo-Craft makes a full line of 20' scale cars that can be used on these mini-layouts and can give a different look on each container layout.

Gardening is the world's largest hobby and G-Gauge trains can play a hand-in-hand role in joining the two into a really fascinating artistic expression. Have design contests with the best bonsai plantings or the best train theme. Have birthday parties for kids where each can design a flowerpot even if they run a single small locomotive. Have adult design parties for garden clubs and have a prize for the best layout at the party.

Keep the look different for the different seasons and get people coming back to change their layouts as the seasons change. If we have a funnel of new people coming in, we then will add to the pool of "experts" who will have major layouts with switches, DCC, radio control and all of the other challenging layouts that we all talk about and see in magazines and on the Internet.

To encourage such an approach, Aristo-Craft is offering two smaller circles of track; one will be a (ART11400) 24" diameter for 18" flowerpots and the other (ART11450), a 32" diameter circle that is ideal for 24" flower pots and whiskey tubs that are available at most garden centers. We also will have brackets (ART12401) to hold the track around the perimeter of pots. Our Eggliner, Lil' Critter and 0-4-0 Steam Locomotive look great on these smaller diameter circles. The 20' series of additional cars works well with these, too. The price points are much lower for these items, yet these are our best quality electric power trucks. They are not inexpensive battery toys that will last a few days and then fail. All of these tracks and brackets will be in stock by the end of the 2007, so that you can start featuring this concept.

There are even full liners available for these pots that allow water gardening with the trains surrounding the "mini-pond" and you can even keep goldfish in these mini-environments. The concept is not limited to container pot gardening, but can be back-and-forths on railings or ledges. It's an unlimited market potential and Aristo-Craft is going to help incubate sales in this area.

Call Aixa or Scott for advice on how to get started in container gardening with trains.

LARGE SCALE TRAIN SHOW NEWSby Harry Hartman

Harry Hartman is the Large Scale Show Manager for the East Coast Large Scale Train Show, Southeast Large Scale Train Show, and Midwest Large Scale Train Show.

By the time you read this article, the SELSTS in Perry, Georgia will be a little more than 100 days away and the ECLSTS is less than 140 days away. The shows are shaping up to be bigger and better than last year.

Where else can you go and find great displays with all styles of scenery and so many different ways of making models look real. Well, all one needs to do is to come to one of the Large Scale Train Shows. There are people there that can answer questions you might have about every aspect of garden railroading. Not only can you find garden railroaders with fantastic displays, but in many cases, you can find what they are displaying for sale from one of several dealers.

If you have questions about how to lay your track, there will be several people at these shows that can tell you what worked for them. Need a bridge for your garden empire? I have seen built bridges from 1 foot long to 10 feet long. All kinds of kits are available for you to custom build bridges for your empire. There are also kits available for buildings.

You could come purchase the needed materials and build a model of your actual home and place it on your layout. You say you are not quite that skilled yet? Well, many of the same vendors offer kits already assembled, but you still have to paint them. Or, there are buildings already finished, ready for your empire.

From time to time, I get emails or phone calls asking, "Is there anything I can do to help with the shows?" My answer is, "Spread the word about the shows!" Your excitement about the show is the best advertisement we could have. But you can not bottle up your excitement and keep it to yourself. You need to tell your friends near and far about these shows. I just got back from looking first-hand at the site for the 2008 MWLSTS. I spent two days in Springfield, Illinois gathering information for the 2008 Midwest Large Scale Train Show. It will be held in Springfield, IL on the Illinois State Fairgrounds on October 3rd and 4th. We will be using the Orr Building. I had the chance to walk through the building when it was empty. It is a very nice building, with lots of room and plenty of parking nearby. The building has both air conditioning and heat, so whatever October weather comes our way, we will be ready. While I was there, I went to the visitors bureau to investigate what services they may have to offer us in getting the word out about our show coming to their area. They were excited that we were bringing the Large Scale Train Show to their town. In talking with the people at the visitors bureau, I asked about any local garden clubs. They said they would contact the local garden club and see if they had heard about large scale trains for their gardens. By the time I got home, there was an email waiting for me that the bureau had contacted the local garden club. The club was very interested in large scale trains and was excited to hear about the show coming to town. They asked for pictures and information about the show so they could reproduce it for their members. It is hard to tell how many interested garden club members and their friends will come to the show. That one contact did not cost the show any money out of its advertising budget. Advertising is very expensive, and it is hard to pick the right source for placing an ad about the shows to get the biggest bang for our buck. Pass the word through your clubs and friends that are part of other clubs.

Both the fairgrounds and visitors bureau staff were very helpful. I was told the area by the fairgrounds and the Interstate has grown a lot in the past two years. I looked at the hotels nearby and there are several nice hotels at reasonable rates as well as great restaurants serving all types of food. We are working on getting a convention price on the hotel rooms. I was asked if we wanted former president Abe Lincoln, famous resident of Springfield, to greet the people at the show. My mind immediately thought of Mr. Lincoln meets the famous TATE. I don't know who would be more awestruck, TATE or Mr. Lincoln.

So if you know any clubs that would like to display their modules at the show or any vendor that should be at the show, let them know that there will be a show in Oct. 2008 and that they need to be there.

I have seen the pre-production samples of the ECLSTS and SELSTS boxcars and engines. Wow, they look fantastic! I am sure they will be sellouts. Remember, you have to be present to get your limited edition items or have a really good friend that will purchase a set for you at the show. Nowhere else can you purchase a boxcar with metal wheels and excellent graphics for the price you pay.

The same goes for the show engines. They have always been excellent buys. I have run these show engines over and over. They are not stripped-down versions. They are the same quality that is coming over on the boat to go to the Aristo-Craft dealers around the world. (I just had to drop a sound system in two of my show engines and how great they look, sound, and run!) And for the person that checks locomotive numbers, the show cars and engines will come in different numbers. You can purchase all four of the different numbered boxcars or just one. The same goes with the two different numbered engines. Remember to get these at the show this year. I don't know how many emails or phone calls I receive from Aristo fans looking for last year's show car or show engine. I have to tell them, "Sorry, we do not have any left."

Below you will see the pre-production samples of the 2008 show cars and show engines. I think you will agree that they look fantastic. They are a great value for the money and one of the excellent reasons to attend the ECLSTS and the SELSTS shows. Ron's Ramblings

My Take on Current Events in the Model Train Industry II

by Ron Wenger

This time one year ago in the last "Ron's Ramblings," I departed from the usual good and cheery news of show information, tips and other goodies to inform you that I was no longer going to do this as a bi-monthly feature. The departure was due to visual problems that were starting to rear their ugly little head again. I wanted to get back to doing more technical things with my time. Plus, I am getting to the point where I do not want to be tied to a schedule anymore. Also, since Harry Hartman had taken over the shows, I felt that it was time that you guys got to know Harry better.

Metal Prices and Large-Scale

Right now with the world metal markets going crazy with demands from developing nations, the fact that one or more additional large-scale manufacturers could go under is real.

The reasons are legion, but the fact is that so many large-scalers fail to realize how small a segment of the population we are and that large-scale manufacturing is done in small batches that are very unique to the manufacturing world.

But rather than make any kind of prediction, let's sit back, wait and watch. Keep our fingers crossed and spend some money on big trains. We need all the manufacturers, especially Aristo-Craft.

Summer (Outdoor) Dangers and Hazards!

Large-scale railroading is not all pretty flowers and great trains. There are hidden dangers outside that we all need to look out for.

A few years ago, right after I had met George Adams, Customer Service Manager at Aristo-Craft at the ECLSTS, he was bitten by a tick and contracted Lyme Disease. I will try to get George to do a write-up on that for a future issue of the Insider, but I can tell you this, his road to recovery was not a short one, and he suffered greatly until he was back on the road to good health.

During the last two weeks of July,

I had pressure-washed all of the wooden picnic tables and benches that I have around the house before putting them back on the new patio that I had built for Sue, my wife. I duly let these sit for close to a week to dry and then gave them a couple of coats of wood treatment and moved them to the new patio. Somehow, some way, a spider, tick, or flea had made themselves a home in the furniture. In the process of moving the heavy wooden benches back to the patio, the offending insect bit me just under where my belt normally goes around my rather large middle.

By late that evening, I was vomiting, had a fever and then chills. I had chills so bad that I shut the AC off on a 95-degree evening and had three blankets on the bed. By morning, I had a rash that ran from my waist to my thighs and a headache that would have floored a giant. The rash and double vision lasted for the better part of two weeks.

The bite pattern did not match that of Lyme Disease, nor did the symptoms mimic anything else that the docs around here had ever seen.

Having traveled extensively over the past 40+ years, I figured everything I could be exposed to, I had been exposed to, including Hansen's disease (Leprosy).

Well, I guess now I can add one more to the list.

And then just when you think it's safe to go in the water again, I was having my usual Friday Geezer Gauge Group running session here at the house, and while putting some heavyweights on the track, a yellow jacket nailed me. Apparently, the blue and grey colors of the B&O Heavyweights agitated a whole colony that had made its home in a hole in a RR tie on my layout.

They say that dry weather makes insect venom more potent. You can call that an old wives' tale if you want, but it's no joke. It was like getting hit by a jolt of electricity. The little bugger hit me about three times until I killed him. I used a bite stick right away, but it took two days for it to stop hurting. I used some Raid chemical warfare on the nest and kept on running trains, as the remainder of the nest stayed agitated all day. At night, when they returned, I sprayed them again.

So be careful while playing with your trains outside. There are hidden dangers in the environment!

What is happening at Aristo-Craft?

Well, this year, the E8/9s finally got here after a snag with the sideframes. The wait was well worth it. Sue had her two ACL E8s out last Friday and ran them with a string of heavyweights behind them. No derailments the whole time they ran. And the purple and silver really impressed our 3 1/2-year old granddaughter. Next to the SD-45s, these are the smoothest running big diesels that I have ever had. The E8 is just an all-around winner.

About the time or shortly after you read this, the GP-40s should be here. I have watched these since Lewis Polk, Aristo-Craft President, showed me the mock-up of the new motor blocks over three years ago. I usually tried to be in Irvington every time they would get some test shots in. Now, the new paint jobs are coming in and the real deal can not be that far behind.

GP-40 to set new standard for two-axle motor blocks.

I have six of the new GP-40s scheduled here for the Crooked and Weedy and I cannot wait. These are going to be the standard for all the future two-axle motor blocks for Aristo-Craft production and will take the place of the old motor blocks now in use. This is the most powerful two-axle block ever made. These will have the PrimeMover gearbox and a new bigger motor with a fan. If you think the old ball-bearing blocks outpulled the competition, wait until you see these. All I can say is the competition had better watch this one.

What is happening with the Large Scale Train Shows?

By now the Big Train Show has gotten settled into its new home and by accords is going to grow. We wish Bryan Curry and crew a lot of good luck and continued success with his show.

The ECLSTS and SELSTS now seem to be running well under Harry Hartman. He moved in with little or no bumps, and in spite of the fact that he thinks he drove me nuts, the shows are all going to do well. The ECLSTS is now a fixture here in the east and the SELSTS is starting to do very well in Perry, GA.

And the one that many of you have been waiting for is returning. The MWLSTS will return and it looks like the City of Springfield, IL is going to be the site for it. Harry, Lewis, and I looked all over the region and we all ended up coming back to Springfield. There aren't many affordable venues large enough to have a show like this and if it grows, has the room to support a larger show, too!

Railroad University (Choo-Choo U)

Many often ask what they can do to promote this great hobby. Well, here is one thing that we are doing here in the Baltimore/Washington statistical area.

Bill Frank, an associate of USA Trains (Aristo-Craft's first Customer Service Manager), and myself have started Railroad University or "Choo-Choo U," as we are calling it. We will be conducting the first class for the area clubs here in my garage on the 3rd of November. It will be a day-long session and will cover a long list of subjects, from the care and feeding of locomotives to tune-up tips for switches. We will go over as much material as we can cover from 8:00 or 9:00 A.M. until 4:00 or 5:00 P.M. in the evening. We have a schedule set up, but are still working on it to get as much in as possible. The classes will start at 9:00 A.M., but I will have coffee and some munchies for those who arrive at 8:00 A.M., along with slides I took of China and the Aristo-Craft Factory when Sue and I were there 8 years ago.

This is something that all of you can do in your area. Get your experts together and make a list of things that you can do that are particular to your area. Bill and I may just take this show on the road if the trials here work well.

The only cost for those attending is that everyone will be asked to kick in $5 dollars for a pizza lunch. Any balance left will go to the Center for Missing and Exploited Children at the ECLSTS in March.

You can go online and buy a diploma, or you can do this and really have the knowledge to back up what you say. These sessions will be open to a lot of discussion as opposed to a seminar where the presenter does most of the talking. Sessions will be limited to 15-20 attendees. For more information, contact me at wengerron@ix.netcom.com.

What are Ron and Sue doing now two years into retirement?

Well, we are starting our third year since I retired from my full-time job, and the second since we gave up the train shows. Life is good, to a point. We are both having health issues, and for a while, I actually had considered getting out of large-scale trains, or at least cutting way back. But then I got one of those bursts of ambition and energy and we are going again. I don't know if it was the 16 days we spent in Hawaii back in March or just taking time to relax. I am still having vision problems (and always will) and some mobility problems, but I work at staying flexible, and work it is. The docs seem to have my medications squared away and I am now starting to lose weight without dieting. I was on five meds that caused weight gain. They did away with one, and now I am starting to lose the almost 100 pounds that I picked up over the last five years. To say that I was miserable would be an understatement. That takes a toll on your whole system.

Sue and I are also into old cars. We got started back into that with the purchase of a 1928 Ford Model A (AR) Roadster pickup this summer and Sue's purchase of a 1940 Ford deluxe sedan this fall. We now finally have a car that I can repair and understand again. Antique cars are holes in the road that you throw money into, or at least some seem that way. We are having a ball with these. On nice days we take the top off the Roadster and drive it to the park for a picnic lunch and then make a few trips around town. Or we will just take off and drive some of the back roads in the area. This winter, we are going to do some work on both so that they are a little more competitive on the show circuit, but we are still going to use them as drivers. Antique cars that are only run for shows are a waste. They were built to run, but sadly the real fact is that if I cut both of these up and made hot-rods out of them, their value would triple.

I have been told that if you get one of these over the great speed of 50 miles an hour, life can cease to exist, or time for that matter. We will not tempt fate.

We are going to try and be at all three Large Scale Shows here in the east next year, so we hope to see many of you at the shows. If not out on the floor spending money, you will find us at the Aristo-Craft booth, so stop by and say hello.
