RMT by Aristo-Craft: New for 2010!

Lewis M. Polk, president of Aristo-Craft Trains (a manufacturer of G-Gauge Electric Toy Trains) and Walter M. Matuch, president of Ready Made Trains/RMT (a manufacturer of 3-rail 0-27/O-Gauge Electric Toy Trains) announced today a joint marketing effort called 'RMT by Aristo-Craft', whereby RMT products will now also be offered to model railroad and toy train enthusiasts through Aristo-Craft's worldwide distribution channels. RMT will continue to develop new toy train products.

The well-known RMT trademark has also been licensed to Aristo-Craft and will be used to identify this brand of 'RMT by Aristo-Craft' 0-27/O-gauge toy trains and accessories.

The original RMT product line has expanded greatly since inception and by joining with Aristo-Craft, product availability, shipping and distribution will be streamlined to benefit the toy train hobbyist, retail stores and the distributor network in both the U.S.A. and European market with the same terms for trade customers already purchasing Aristo-Craft Trains.

"In 2010, we celebrate the 75th anniversary of Aristo-Craft and I welcome RMT to our extensive line of model railroad and R/C products," says Polk. In the coming weeks, 'RMT by Aristo-Craft' will be issuing a brand-new full-color train catalog that will showcase many new-for-2010 RMT products and accessories.

Prior to starting RMT in 2003, Walter M. Matuch was Product Manager at Aristo-Craft, developing many of the G-gauge products offered today and was later Vice-President Operations/Licensing at Taylor Made Trucks...a manufacturer of quality promotional toy vehicles for major oil companies. Walter has over 40 years experience in both the model railroad/toy train, hobby and prototype railroad industry.

In keeping with the railroading theme, the 'RMT by Aristo-Craft' agreement was signed on a 'full-size' Jersey Central Railroad caboose owned by Matuch, a former passenger and freight train conductor.

"Aristo-Craft is a well-known hobby line that has always offered a quality product and I am excited about this new relationship that will strengthen and expand distribution channels and allow more products to reach train hobbyists from RMT and Aristo-Craft," says Matuch. Both Aristo-Craft and RMT products are made at the same factory complex in China, so efficiency of shipping will mean that goods can ship in a timely manner when manufactured, rather than when a container-load quantity has been reached for either company.

The RMT website will remain the main marketing tool of the 'RMT by Aristo-Craft' product line. Aristo-Craft has a great-computerized ordering capability for the trade and RMT has a great consumer web site www.readymadetoys.com.

"All in all, it's a win-win situation for both Aristo-Craft and RMT," says Polk. These two non-competing train lines will be offered through Aristo-Craft distribution channels as well as established RMT hobby distributors. Retailers can now order what they need in either G-Gauge or O-27/O gauge trains and have it come in one efficient shipment from their favorite hobby distributor.

Aristo-Craft and RMT will expand the model railroading experience for the distributor, retailer and consumer with affordable quality products.

ECLSTS Spring Show - March 26th and 27th, 2010by Harry Hartman

Harry Hartman is the Large Scale Show Manager for the East Coast Large Scale Train Show.

Here it comes! The 2010 Spring ECLSTS is on its way. Are you ready for it?

First of all, we want to say congratulations to Lewis and Maryann with the birth of their granddaughter. I saw a picture of Gwendolyn and she looks very happy. I am sure the grandparents are "popping their buttons."

Well, the SPRING ECLSTS will be here in less than a week. We have some new vendors and many of the ones that have been there in the past are going to be there again.

We still have a couple of booths that are open so if you don't see your favorite vendor in the list, you might encourage them to get a booth at the show. Be sure to check the two websites for updates on the list. We will be posting any changes to this list as they happen on the Aristo-Craft Forums for the Spring East Coast Large Scale Train Show and the www.largescaletrainshows.com web site.

Let's not forget the show car, The P & WV offset coal hopper. It is a beautiful looking car. Remember, metal wheels and four road numbers all for $50.00. A great bargain to say the least! Don't forget your show t-shirt too. I just spoke with Lewis and he will have the "Still Plays With Trains" shirts and hats available for purchase at the show.

Remember to visit the Aristo Craft booth to see and hear about the up and coming new projects. Aristo Craft will also have a booth just for upgrades on your Revolution System. So, be sure and bring your Revolution for its upgrade.

FRIDAY

ON-GOING SEMINARS Both days all day long

Lawrence "Yogi" Wallace-- At the Lawrence "Yogi" Wallace booth, just inside the doors and to the right. Be sure to stop by and see Yogi turn stuff we throw away into works of art that you can use in your garden railway.

Bob Temper-- At the back of the layout hall to the right of the Food Concession area, will be doing figure-making. Bob Temper of Gateway Garden Railroads Club in St. Louis, MO will be demonstrating how to sculpt your own figures doing what you want them to do in the scale that fits your railroad. He will be demonstrating the techniques developed by noted sculptor Chris Walas to create figures using aluminum foil armatures as a base for polymer clay sculptures. Materials and tools are inexpensive and easy to use. Bob has been having fun with this process since 2005.

Front Doors open at 9:00 a.m.

10:00 to 12:00 - Electronics and Your Railroad by David Bodnar

Add interest and excitement to your railway with super bright LEDs, microcontrollers and other inexpensive & intriguing electronic devices. Learn how to build and program a microcontroller that can automate sounds, lights, switch motors and engines. An assortment of unique electronic devices and controls will be presented.*

Part I of the workshop (10:00 to 11:00) will focus on microcontrollers, and how you can easily program them to do exciting things on your railroad.

Part II of the workshop (11:00 to 12:00) will show an array of electronic components, projects, gadgets and gizmos that have been developed, with and without microcontrollers, for model railroad use.*

These workshops are similar to those given last year but have been revised and updated.*

12:00 to 1:00 - Train Engineer Revolution Seminar by David Bodnar

This seminar will focus on the Revolution's new switch control unit. This track-side device will allow you to operate switch motors from Aristo Craft and other vendors from the Revolution transmitter. We will also explore how you can install the Revolution receiver in a battery operated, non-plug & play locomotive.

1:15 to 2:15 - Questions for Newbies answered by Lewis Polk

Decisions are a part of becoming a G Gauger and the first steps are full of choices. Don't worry! Be happy and we'll tell you how!

2:30 to 3:30 "Putting the Garden in your Garden Railway"

Tom McCloud of Appalachian Nurseries helping you select the right plants for your layout.

3:40 to 4:40 Axel Tillmann of TRAINS-LI-USA . Topics to be covered:

- * What do you actually want or let's define long-term "play value"
 - * Layout design under the consideration of land acquisition (Eminent domain or avoid a marital crisis)
 - * Track laying basics (free floating and trenches, tied down with support system, bench work)
 - * Switches or no Switches (Why is this a question?)
 - * Material choices, (Plastic, Aluminum, Brass, Nickel, Stainless Steel Rail)
 - * Consideration for powering your layout (Analog, Digital, Remote Control, Battery, Live Steam/Diesel)

These Trains Aren't Toys, But Sure Are Fun To Play With by Daniel Strachman

Editor's Note: The Aristo-Craft Eggliner was featured recently in a write-up on the Alternative Press website (<http://www.thealternativepress.com>). The author, Daniel Strachman, is a Fanwood-based financial writer. He blogs at www.hedgeanswers.com/blog and can be reached at das@hedgeanswers.com.

IRVINGTON, NJ - Nestled amid a junk car dealer, a surgical supply manufacturer and a paper distributor in Irvington sits Aristo-Craft Trains, a G-scale model railroad company.

The G stands for "garden," and these aren't the trains we're used to seeing around the Christmas tree. They're large-scale detailed models, 1/22 of the actual size, used in layouts that run through backyards, gardens and homes and look as real as the local railroad.

Aristo-Craft, which is owned and operated by Lewis Polk and his wife MaryAnn, is one of a handful of companies in the United States that develops, manufactures and sells these large-scale trains and accessories to model railroad enthusiasts around the world.

"We are not in the toy business," Polk said in his office at the company's 30,000-square-foot building that serves as warehouse, design center and corporate headquarters. "We're in the full-scale model business and our products are made to run and last quite a long time. These trains are not for hiding in the basement; they are to be used and enjoyed by the whole family."

Being in the hobby business is something that runs deep in Polk's family. His father Nat and uncle Irwin started out in New York City in 1935 with a hobby shop on Seventh Avenue. Soon, the brothers moved the business to a five-story building on Fifth Avenue, with a different hobby on each floor. The family sold the building in 1980 and moved to Irvington, where they got out of the retail business to focus on manufacturing and wholesaling large-scale trains and accessories.

Today the company sells its products around the globe to people who create fantastic layouts that run both indoors and out. Each of the Aristo-Craft engines come with a patented sealed gearbox, which allows the trains to operate in pretty much any environment. Polk does not recommend using the trains in extreme weather conditions, but the trains can run in a light rain and sit outdoors in the elements with little effect on their ability to operate.

"I just got a call from someone who told me he spent over $100,000 to create a layout on his property that covers acres of land," Polk said. "People post videos on YouTube all the time that show their layouts. When you spend this kind of money on something, you want to show it off."

The cost of being a G-scale model railroader is quite high. While starter sets can be had for anywhere between $175 and $400, a layout of any size will run you thousands of dollars. One particular engine – the Mallet, modeled from a photograph by O. Winston Link -- retails for $800. Simply put, getting into this hobby is going to cost you – because these models are true luxury items.

Unfortunately, like many makers of luxury goods, the recession has hit Aristo-Craft quite hard over the last two years. For the first time in the company's history, Polk has had to reduce head-count and downsize his operation in order to stay in business. Earlier this year, German manufacturer Marklin filed for bankruptcy and in 2004, Lionel Trains also filed for bankruptcy. Lionel emerged from bankruptcy in 2008 and seems to be doing well. The fate of Marklin is still unknown.

"When people are worried about their jobs and worried about paying rent or worried about having money for food and shoes the last thing they're thinking about is buying model trains," he said. "My products are not inexpensive and right now I understand that it can be very hard for people to justify the expense.

"I don't make toys," said Polk. "I make models, exquisite models."

The reason the trains cost so much is because of the quality that goes into the design and manufacture.

Aristo-Craft products are large-scale models of trains past and present that ran the rails of the United States. The cornerstone of the manufacturing process is accuracy in everything that comes off the line. Polk and his designers pay close attention to every detail from start to finish. "The mold to make an engine can cost up to $350,000.00 and can take more than a year to complete," he said. "We cannot skimp on a single detail when we create a new piece because if we do, we will get complaints from people who pay attention to these sorts of details."

To do this, Polk and his team do exhaustive research into color schemes, lighting patterns, trim and even rivets to insure that everything is accurate on the trains. The research includes basic searching on the Internet to writing companies to get information about specific characteristics of the engines, tenders, cabooses and rolling stock that was used or is used throughout the country.

"There are people who will count the rivets on an engine and box car and if there are too many or too few will call me and complain," he said. "If the color is wrong or the trim is out of place, I hear about it until it is fixed."

Polk calls these folks, "the Rivet Police" and while getting complaints is not easy, he appreciates their enthusiasm and interest in making sure the products he creates are accurate. "People expect to get accurate models right down to the last detail," he said. "That is why they buy our products because they know the products are accurate and will run well right out of the box."

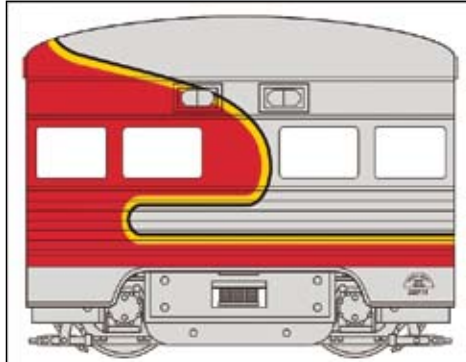

The trains, which are designed in the Irvington facility, are manufactured in China using an injection molding process that can take up to a year to produce. Polk's team designs the model using a three dimensional Auto-cad system and once complete, sends the designs to a factory in China where a series of molds are created out of steel. Once each of the molds is created and tested, hot plastic is injected into it to form one of the many parts that make up the model. The finished product is assembled by putting together all of the various molds creating a single unit.

The molds are created using a reverse sculpting process, which means that everything is carved out of steel in reverse by hand so that when the plastic is injected it fills in the various places in the mold to create the front, side, rear, or bottom of the train. Once the models are assembled, the trains are painted and dressed with their markings in a similarly painstaking painting process to ensure accuracy and authenticity.

"The process is not easy or simple, it takes a lot of work to go from an idea or sketch to something that runs on a layout," Polk said. "It's worth it, though, once you see the train on the track."

Getting into G-scale model railroading can seem quite daunting to those who just want to set up a train and watch it run around. One way to get into the hobby without a large financial commitment is Aristo-Craft's Eggliner, a self-propelled train that is quite interesting to look at and to watch run. The company has been making the Eggliner series for about ten years and a starter set costs about $175 complete. It is a lot of fun to run, especially with young kids. There are some wild videos of the Eggliners in action on YouTube. Check them out – it's worth the watch.

by Lewis Polk

Many of you have written about your success with the GP-40, but there have been some with issues as well. If you have such an issue, please e-mail me at lewis@polk-shobby.com and I will send a call tag for your gear box or complete loco and we will look it over for problems. Of course you need to send your physical address as well and pack the item up for shipping safely back to us.

Our original Mikado had some wheel problems, yet we fixed each and every one that was sent back to us and to date we have not had any back a second time. Mass production is not easy for short run products as model trains are, but if and when a problem occurs we stand behind the product.

Most of our newer diesel products are trouble free, such as the SD-45, E-8 and Dash 9 that have had spectacular runs of reliability and we want to make sure that the GP-40 joins that list.

Often a new product is a learning process with dozens of check points that vary from part to part. Consistent parts from sub contractors is a key factor in producing a product and incoming parts inspection is key. However, some parts vary and it's hard to find variances that act differently with other components. We will fix any such occurrences at our expense.

We have been in business for 75 years and customer service is one of the reasons we have survived. A new gearbox is always a complicated effort to manufacture and the GP-40 motor block was just that. However, our job is to make things right and we will do so with any GP-40 that hasn't matched your expectations of an Aristo-Craft product.

Heavy and large items are $20.00. Oversized or heavy items may require additional fee. Small items are $2.00 each up to five, and $10.00 for orders of five or more. See sales list for specific prices. Please include a charge card number, check or money order.
 12. When Sale is NOT restricted to Continental US: Canadian and Foreign orders must be on a charge card, International Money Order or check drawn on an American bank, NOT just on American Funds. Foreign shipments are three times (3x) the shipping and handling fee specified for domestic shipping listed elsewhere on sale sheet. Otherwise: Foreign shipments are $30.00 for most items. Heavy and large items are $45.00. Small items are $6.00 each up to five, and $45.00 for orders of five or more. There may be additional fees. Shipment is via surface or sea post. We will charge the actual amount on air shipments according to your instructions.
