VOL. 21 - NO. 3

MAY-JUNE 2013

THE BATTERY GUARDIAN

Our hobby grows and changes. Aristo-Craft / Crest is proud to be the leader in meeting the challenges of Large Scale railroading and in setting the direction for the continued enjoyment of our trains. One major change in the hobby is in how we power our trains.

Aristo-Craft has been producing and repairing model trains for well over a quarter of a century. We've learned a lot about maintaining and protecting our customers' motive power. It's been our quest that your engines will last indefinitely. You've made an investment in them, and we want to help you protect that investment.

From the introduction of electric-powered toy trains more than 100 years ago, the most common method of powering locomotives has been through the track. It's an easy to set up, fairly efficient method of delivering current to the motors. It works particularly well indoors. Outdoors, well, that's another situation altogether. G Gauge trains in natural environments face a host of challenges. The most troubles are the ones which cause extra maintenance to keep electrical continuity at its peak and those which effect the proper performance and longevity of your engines.

Rolling wheels pick up power from the track's surface. The constant motion causes arcing that damages wheels over the long term. It also produces a "carbon black" residue on both the track and wheels. Wheel pitting and carbon residue always led to a degradation of performance. Both increase the need for maintenance, and raise the possibility of a shortened life for electrical motors. In short:

- Dirty or pitted wheels lead to intermittent power to the motor.
- Dirty track leads to poor running characteristics and operational problems.
- Maintenance requirements increase.
- Hobby enjoyment turns to more work, increasing frustration, and less running time when upkeep is deferred.

Increasingly, we're hearing you say want it to be different.

We know that batteries provide pure, consistent, reliable D.C. power. They eliminate the complications of track joint continuity, dirty track and wheel generated problems.

10 years ago, Aristo-Craft redesigned our loco power boards. At the same time we added a "Track/Battery" switch and began providing power input plugs on our locomotives. We led the market to an easier to adopt battery trailing car option. This production practice continues today. We are even adding it to our smallest locomotives

We made Lithium-Ion battery packs available and increased their value by including a charging circuit control board to protect the battery pack while it was recharging. This battery offering worked well, but we began to see a flaw. When a single cell malfunctioned, the entire pack shutdown to protect the other cells in the pack. The pack was saved, but it was no longer operational. You were left with a "dead battery" and we were handling additional repairs. This situation needed to change.

Our engineer began evaluating and testing battery packs from a wide range of third party providers. The search didn't identify an affordable battery pack able to meet our specifications for reliability and ease of use, characteristics you've come to expect from our products. The packs used in the R/C airplane field looked promising. Their real strength was in rapid charging and a burst of discharge that flew a plane for short intervals. We quickly discovered that they wouldn't power your train for the timeframes you expected. You need a battery pack that can withstand regular recharging, carefully monitored discharging over a few hours and be recharged in a reasonable timeframe.

Thus, our engineer decided to design a charging/discharge operation board which we could easily add to batteries purchased separately. We saw the need to separate the protective board from the traditional integrated battery/board purchase. We designed the circuitry and connective wiring to allow the monitoring of each cell independently from the others, while simultaneously balancing charging / discharging for peak performance during charge and operation. With our new technology, any cell that approaches a negative voltage is shut down without affecting the performance of other cells.

The Battery Guardian board is plugged into a multi-cell pack, as a separate device from the pack. To provide its intended result, the board must be in place during both charging and discharging cycles so that it can continuously monitor the battery pack's state. The Battery Guardian board contains a programmed computer chip which provides the proprietary charging / discharging monitoring and instructions for each individual cell. We will manufacture the board ourselves to keep our system confidential. Aristo-Craft will source the battery packs to our specifications and will add the proprietary Battery Guardian board ourselves at the time of delivery to the consumer.

The board could be used to charge many packs, but remember that it must be in place with the battery pack during operation for maximum utility, value and impact.

Our testing makes us confident that this new system will provide continually clean D.C. power to the user of our Revolution radio control system. That confidence is shown in a one-year warranty on the battery pack and attached board. We're guaranteeing a year of daily use, i.e. 365 charging cycles, with a charging time of 3 hours and a running time of 4 hours (NOTE - run time dependent on the size and weight of the loco plus its train, layout grades, and whether you are powering lights, smoke, and/or sound). Aristo-Craft is confident that we can protect the investment in your trains and allow them to run efficiently as well. You no longer need to worry about the cleanliness of your track, continuity of power between track sections, or power to sidings or reverse loop. In effect, you can operate your trains like the prototype railroads and enjoy your hobby with less time devoted to maintenance.

Aristo-Craft Trains and Crest Electronics are Polk's Model Craft Hobbies companies and are headquartered in Irvington, NJ. For over 70 years the company has prided itself in manufacturing the best toy and model trains in the industry while maintaining their focus on the consumer. More information, as it becomes available, will be posted on the Aristo-Craft Trains Forum at: www.aristocraft.com and announced through the Company's Twitter feed @twitter.com/gauguetrains.

calisthenics and played tennis until he was 85. Sol sold his Burd business to Ed Miller when he enlisted and Ed, soon after, suffered a fire loss and Burd was finished. Some companies later reproduced his innovative designs and the name was kept alive with modelers.

After the war, Sol became an early wholesaler of hobby products in Baltimore and was one of the biggest wholesalers that supported most of the new manufacturers in this new industry. Sol was a great friend of Revell's Lou Glaser and helped direct this company to success.

Sol later had the opportunity to purchase the molds of Varney Trains and moved the manufacturing to Taiwan.

Sol then moved the manufacturing to China, where he started a company called Sanda Kan. Soon after he acquired a partner by the name of W.S. Ting and they jointly grew the business to make for 100 train companies all over the world.

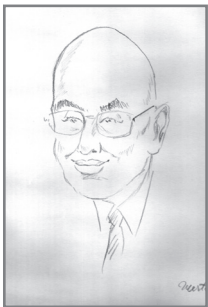

Sol also created Perfect Parts for airplane train and science projects as well as LifeLike Scenics for the first grass mats, lichen and ready made trees for model trains.

Sol and his brother also were original backers of the Broadway show "Grease" that went on to be a long running hit as well as a mega hit movie.

Sol was a great friend to my wife, Maryann and I. We will miss him every day.

SOL KRAMER: 2-19-1917 to 4-24-2013

by Lewis Polk

The hobby industry lost a great pioneer in April and I lost a dear friend.

Sol was born to immigrant parents in Baltimore, MD and was more poor than not. He graduated high school at the age of 14. As it would be hard, if not impossible for a 14-year old to get a job, he started a hobby shop with a concentration of model airplanes. Sol had studied aeronautics in high school as flight gained every ones' imagination as this was soon after the excitement of the Wright Brothers' proof that flight was possible.

Sol and his brother, Lou, were soon making airplane kits under the name "Burd Models." Sol purchased a used printing machine to print designs in balsa wood for his kits. My father, Nat Polk, soon became his sales rep and they would stay at each other's houses on sales trips to save costs during the Depression.

When WWII began, Sol enlisted in the Marines and was a Drill Instructor at Camp LeJeune for the entire war time. For most of his life, he continued doing

2013 SPRING ECLSTS REPORT by Harry Hartman

The 2013 East Coast Large Scale Train Show is now in the history books. Everyone always wants to know about numbers for the shows and I can tell you that the attendance was up about 10 percent over last year's attendance. We had 7 new vendors that had not been to the show before. I even had one vendor call 4 days before the show and wanted several booths. We were able to accommodate his request.

From what I heard from several vendors, they had a good 2 days of selling, too. I know I ended up with some goodies to bring home with me that I did not know I needed before the show started. I purchased a new camera before the show and we went on a photo shooting fun time. We were able to get some great shots and some videos. We were able to see several new G Scale products coming out. I thought the show car was a very colorful car. It sold very quickly on Friday. I thought it might sell out by noon on Saturday. I brought 3 of them home with me. I like the car so much I purchased 4 gondolas and had a decal made for a companion car to go with the reefer. I painted one black and one red. I like the red one the best. I made the gondolas to haul the Horseshoe Curve Beer cans I found on EBay. I had fun working on them.

From the reports I heard, the seminars were great. I usually try to sit in on one or two of them, but was busy this year and did not get to sit in. We opened up one of the break out rooms for the seminars. From what I heard, many liked the room better than the hall. I was asked by several people, "Why can't you have the room set aside each year for the seminars?" Well, to be very honest, it is kind of hard to turn down vendors that want space when we run out of room and need to open up that part of the hall. It gives you about 13 more booths for you to view.

Saturday was very special for Kathy and me. We received a surprise. Two of our sons and their families showed up at the ticket booth. One of the ticket takers recognized our grandchildren and told

The 2013 Spring ECLSTS!

Kathy she had better come to the window as she needed Kathy's help. She saw our son and then called for me to come to the office. Wow, they kept their trip a secret from us. It was so great seeing my grandchildren's eyes light up at all of the trains and my son's expressions too were priceless. I took them on a tour of both halls and introduced them to everyone that I ran into with my family. Everyone was so gracious to them. Thank you for helping make this a special day for Kathy and I. After all, we all love to see the eyes of the children and the adults that have no idea what fun there is in this great hobby.

The date for the 2014 ECLSTS has been set so mark your calendars now. March 21 and 22 of 2014 will be the next East Coast Large Scale Train Show. You now have 11 months to share your wonderful hobby with others and tell them about this train show you go to and how you think they would enjoy going to the show with you. Now is the season we have lived for all year long, time to get the trains out and enjoy running them. I have seen several open house listings on the forums.

I guess it is time for true or false or rumor control. I have been bombarded with questions from show attendees and vendors too about starting up a Fall ECLSTS again. I did put out a questionnaire to the vendors about the possibility starting up the Fall Shows again. The information I received back left me with more questions. The answers I received were asking me about opening it up to an all scales show. So I am not sure as to keep it just G Scale or open it up. The other thing, it will be put on by H & K Productions, not JJ Productions. Since it has left me with too many unanswered questions and not enough time to advertise for the 2013 Fall show, we have decided not to have a 2013 Fall show. We want to put on a show that you are accustomed to, not a haphazard quickly put-together show. So the next ECLSTS will be March 21 and 22 of 2014. A Fall show will be in 2014. Not sure if it will be G or all scales. A lot of thought will be going into this show over the next couple months, then start to advertise.

Thanks for a very enjoyable 2013 ECLSTS. I hope you enjoy your season for the trains. Now is the time to run what you purchased at the show. Again, Spread the word about your hobby and the ECLSTS.

Many vendors were on-hand to interact with attendees.

The ECLSTS is a great place for RR enthusiasts to gather and meet.
