VOL. 21 - NO. 4

JULY-AUGUST 2013

CREST ELECTRONICS NEW WEB SITE

Crest Electronics was started as an accessory maker for Aristo-Craft Trains; The Crest name was used to signify that these products were universal for all model trains. Now we are debuting a new website for Crest Electronics as we will soon be producing product for more gauges than just G. The production is still handled by the people that have made this high-quality product and our service is the same as we have had since day one.

The build quality is still just like your mobile phones and the screen is custom for just ourselves. Our concept remains a direct signal from the transmitter to the receiver board, without sending a signal through the track rail. Crest also has a bi-directional high speed signal that will display high temperatures on the track or shorts with an instant alert notice. Also, you receive a speed and directional notice on your transmitter in real time, along with a smoke on and off indication.

NEW CREST WEB SITE!

<http://www.crest-electronics.net>

There is no power base station needed and we are jumping the number of locos that can be controlled from one transmitter from 50 to 99. Just like a mobile phone you can have a hundred thousand people using their phones in a sports stadium and never have one phone interfered with by any of the others in use. The range is 200' to 300' depending on local conditions and you can have up to 6 locos in a consist including middle and trailing pushers all working in the same direction and speeds. You can turn lights on or off in any loco and speed control is adjustable by the number of steps used to reach top speed.

The programming is done in house at Crest and we now have a download USB style cord that will upgrade the transmitter programming and sounds directly from any PC computer and the Internet. The download is sent directly to the transmitter or receiver by the USB card and updates the program or sounds as chosen.

We will have an upgraded super receiver with 15 Amps and 24V, now with either linear or pulse width power and sound is being added too. We are working on loco specific sounds that can be downloaded to any of our current generic sound receivers.

The big news is that we will have an HO board that will be 5 amp and 18v along with the loco specific sounds that are able to be downloaded as well.

These boards can be plug and play into any NMRA port available on most HO locos. The programming will be the same as used for years on the G Gauge version of the Revolution, which is proven in use for some 5 years.

Our system is programmed on a graphic screen, without any code numbers to learn. You never need to re-set your layout when the base station fails and you do not need to worry about clean track. Our li-on battery now has an in-house developed "guardian" board to protect charging and discharging for long battery life and remember we use 6 cells for a full 2 amps and 22.5 volts.

Thanks for your past support of the Crest Revolution. You'll be able to order them at our new website <http://www.crest-electronics.net>.

NOTE! As of August 14, many items are currently backordered on the Crest site, but new goods will be back in stock in mid-to-late September.

BEHIND THE SCENES: ARISTO-CRAFT WHEELS

When we started in the G Gauge business in 1988, LGB (now, a division of Marklin Inc.) had 99% of the G gauge market. We followed their standards for most of their time in business. When they went out of business, we started to develop our own wheels and mostly followed the NMRA standards. We also stopped using chrome wheels for our locomotives as the spark that brought the power up from the track caused a quick degradation of the chrome plating. Frankly, we could not find a similar quality plating in China and decided to change to a fully black material.

This black material was more realistic, and as the color went all the way through, there was no plating to wear through. As long as we were changing things, we also decided to make all of our wheels uniform in the depth of the flange and the radius of the flange. At the same time, we decided to make all of the locomotive wheels use a D-Cut method of attachment to the axle of the locos.

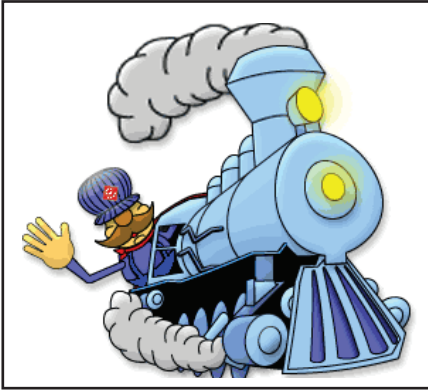

While our tapered axle worked well too, we found the simplification and constancy of the wheels to be easier for the manufacturing staff to understand and connect each wheel in a similar conforming fashion.

We use a tenth of an inch for a flange depth and a tested radius for the wheels. We have had many reports that these wheels are working well with most vendors switches as well as our own. The blackened wheels provide a good current pass through and they stay new looking for the life of the locomotive.

This project required all new wheels for every loco we make and as each new run of locomotive is put into production they will have a new wheels set. It's time consuming and costly, but we have made the strategic decision to follow this path for all Aristo-Craft locomotive products.

PRIMARY SOURCE vs. RELIABLE SOURCES

written by TATE, The Aristo Train Engineer

The rumor mill is running at full production and working overtime.

Unfortunately there's no quality control to the information it is producing. The "Reliable Sources" brand of information showing up on some websites and yahoogroups e-mail lists is based on hearsay, and is simply incorrect.

After being bombarded with e-mails and phone calls about Aristo-Craft closing its doors "in a few days", it was time to sit with the Primary Source of information about Aristo-Craft, namely Lewis & Maryann Polk and Scott Polk. TATE spent two hours this afternoon in Irvington with them talking about the business, the future of Crest Electronics, the 27,000 sq ft warehouse, and the rumor campaign to kick dirt onto the business and declare it dead.

By now, just about all of you know that "TATE" is a living, breathing individual. He is neither Scott, nor Lewis. He is a fourteen year employee of Polk's Model Craft Hobbies who has had the responsibility of being a digital presence to serve and represent the needs of you the Customer. He's paid for his work. He's always been straight with the Customer, and that won't change now.

As you read this, I'd ask that you quiet your "hobbyist" brain and rely on your "business" brain.

The 2013 Landscape:

- The Large Scale manufacturing landscape has changed dramatically in the past five years.
- The Large Scale retail landscape has been rocked by economic conditions and a major shift in consumer buying habits.
- Large Scale is a niche market.

Primary Source Facts:

- Polks Model Craft Hobbies owns a number of businesses, all of which have operated under one roof in Irvington, NJ (and Jersey City, NJ prior to that).
- Polks Model Craft Hobbies is a privately owned, for-profit corporation.
- The Polk family owns and operates the corporation and annually makes decisions in the best interests of business continuity and profitability, always with an eye toward serving its Customer base.

Here's the word from the Polk's ..
THE Primary Source ...

Aristo-Craft is NOT closing its doors "in a few days" ... And no one, no "West Coast reliable source", or "reliable source at a Greenberg Show", or any other "in the know" technical pundant has the inside scoop about a closing. While the Polks do not have a crystal ball which will tell the future, the closing of Aristo-Craft is not imminent. Aristo-Craft has a container of product arriving Mon/Tues next week. There is also a container arriving in early Nov. The containers will bring a variety of product into the warehouse, not just the upgraded 0-4-0s. As Mark Twain said, "The reports of my death are greatly exaggerated."

The Crest Electronics business has not been sold, traded, given or otherwise transferred to an Aristo employee, group of employees or any other new owner. The Crest Electronics business has been the Polks' radio control business for decades (trains, planes and automobiles). It has brought to market a number of innovative products and has done quite well despite larger, hobby related economic issues. The current Revolution system has been very successful and that success drives its expansion. Revolution system components for G will be restocked approximately mid-Sept. JK is going overseas early in Sept. to the manufacturing site for QC and for development work on a line extension. "Reliable sources" may post that expanding beyond G is a recipe for disaster, a business analysis indicates otherwise ... and separating the Crest product line from the Aristo-Craft product lineup broadens the Crest nameplate and allows other gauges to more readily be Customer accepted. (example - HO enthusiasts wouldn't look at a G Gauge product lineup for a product directed at them.) For those with short memories, Aristo-Craft is no stranger to the HO marketplace.

RMT / Arist0 was NOT a drain on the company. In fact, it has been quite the opposite. As the G Gauge marketplace continues its anemic buying patterns, the O Gauge market has been steady and fruitful.

A post was made about how the pulling up of the outdoor layout in Irvington was an indication of the failed financials of the company and the departure of Aristo-Craft from the marketplace. The layout is gone for one simple reason ... it contributed nothing to the business and took time and money to maintain. The property is in an urban industrial area, and hidden behind another building. It didn't grace a retail establishment but a warehouse and an office. Very, very few people saw it except as a background in product photography. Gone in a realignment of resources.

The same post mentioned how empty the warehouse seemed on the same visit. It's a 27,000 square foot warehouse. When business was at its peak it held a few million dollars of inventory and then it wasn't at more than 75% capacity. In today's environment that much inventory would drown the business. Today, it's much more overhead than the company needs. The warehouse is for sale as of Sept. 1, as a right-sized facility is sought. The business requires a warehouse that fits its needs and resources, not one that drains it in a business with smaller inventory needs.

So here's a great example of how "reliable source" information gets it wrong. A post on a yahogroup reported that Aristo's buildings would no longer be produced and implied the molds were for sale. Fact = Aristo building for sale. Rumor = building line dropped, molds for sale. Fact = the building line will not see another production run in 2013. Rumor = Aristo out of the building product line.

Today it was "rumored" that a $1M investment had been made in the Company and that would bring with it new ownership. JP Morgan China was mentioned as investing. Not correct. JP Morgan China bought Sanda Kan from the original US owners. They ran it into the ground and were about to go under. Kader (not Bachmann) bought it from them. JP Morgan China did "touch" Aristo in that way. They are not a "$1M" investor in any part of Polks Model Craft Hobbies. Lewis, Maryann and Scott confirm that there is not a new owner.

An internet post pointed at Scott Polk as the cause of the demise of the retail hobby shop by taking the Aristo business to consumer-direct. Scott, Lewis and Maryann put a rather startling fact on the table ... in the fiscal year prior to the move to consumer direct, sales to retailers declined by 85% . With a warehouse filled with product, and 85% of your primary sales channel gone, the writing was on the wall. Develop a new sales channel or shut down. Going direct kept Aristo-Craft selling. The closing of hobby retailers across the country was driven by issues much larger than the Aristo-Craft sales channel change. In fact, the previous years' massive retail channel decline mirrored the changing buying habits of consumers in a wide variety of businesses.

The grain of truth behind the rumors is that it's a very challenging financial situation. Adapt, improvise and succeed. Status quo and go quietly. There are changes, visible and behind the scenes.

There are fewer people working at the warehouse. Never an easy decision.

JJ Productions (a Polks company) will have an announcement about not producing a 2014 ECLSTS (fear not! ... more news to follow on that)

A keen eye and a sharp pencil will be needed in the coming months to manage P&L.

The company may well have a new address in 2014.

The changes that you will see are designed for the health and longevity of Polks Model Craft Hobbies and its family of companies.

There are the facts from the Primary Source.

LETTER FROM LEWIS POLK

Dear All Friends of the ECLSTS,

I've reached an age, where I no longer have the stamina that I had when I started the show in response to the success of the Queen Mary show in California. The show has been a success here in York, Pa. and to insure it's continuing in a current like manner I have asked Harry and Kathy Hartman to continue running the show as H & K Management.

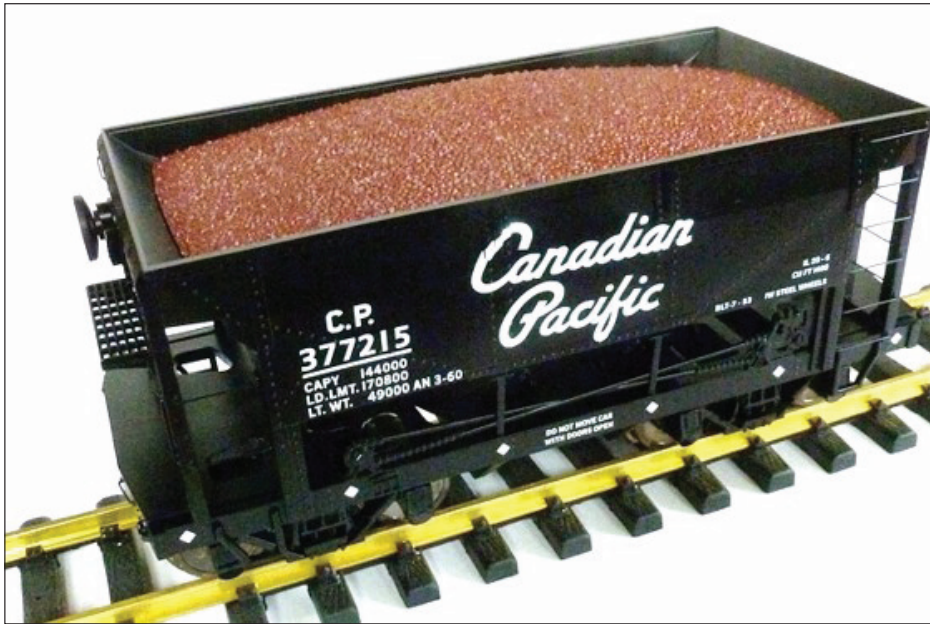

As you know, Harry and Kathy have been doing so with me for several years and I don't feel I can add to the mix at this time. I'm trying to spend more time in my Florida vacation home and the show takes away from this treasured time in Florida.

I know you will give them all the consideration that you have afforded me since the start of the show in Atlantic City. Thank you all for making this the premier show in G Gauge and I hope to see you all at the National in Tampa next year.

All the best,

Lewis Polk

2013 SPRING ECLSTS REPORT by Harry Hartman

Well, here we are in the thick of the Garden Railroading season. It has been rainy here the past two weeks; Then the sun comes out and it gets hot. Wow!

I have had the chance to visit some home displays over the past couple months. It has given me some time to install some Revolution chips in my locomotives. It is always great to see some of the ECLSTS Show cars in use on these displays. It gives me a chance to ask questions about the show, such as "What do you like about the show?", "What do you look forward to when you go to our shows?", or "What kind of show car would you like to see?" I am shocked sometimes when I ask about the ECLSTS and they say that they have not been there.

The 2013 ECLSTS is in the history books. If you have not heard by now, there will NOT be a 2013 ECLSTS Fall Show from JJ Productions. The next JJ Productions show will be the Spring 2014 ECLSTS. We have already received some checks from vendors for booth space. It will not be long until we will be sending out registration forms for the 2014 ECLSTS and invitations to the club displays. So if you have a favorite vendor that you would like to see at our show, let us know their name and address and we will be glad to send them information about the show.

We are busy working on the show car for 2014. We are making final plans as to which one we will use this year.

Remember to 'pass the word' about the ECLSTS. Be sure to tell them that this show is more than a model train show; It is almost like a family reunion. I know I look forward to attending the show each time. It is always great chatting with many of you at the shows.

Well, until next issue, I will say, "Enjoy your trains, Spread the word about the shows, and I look forward to seeing you all again!"
